The power of the word

A book is lying on the shelf
Who put it here? Have no idea
But maybe that the Word itself
Is waiting for us now and here

The power of the Word is strong
It can defeat, or can inspire
It tells the good from ill and wrong
And brings our spirits even higher

We all have strings inside the heart
That sing us songs we find appealing
And speaking is a kind of art
That can evoke in soul some feeling

It's not conditioned only by
The going deeper into notion
Its purposes are very high
They power brain's and muscles' motion

We live by stories we create
We can amend our own story
In some of them the Man is great
That takes all power and the glory

We take from nature all we need
If we do harm, we're justifying
These actions, and we do proceed
To use the strategy of lying

My dear reader, take a look
It is so nice to have good weather
The nature is an open book
Designed for all to read together

Until indeed is very late
Please, watch your words, change your position
And use these words now to create
The harmony as new tradition

The famous scholars, please, be wise
In treating Words; you're mindful masters
And use them now to break the ice
In understanding the disasters

Interpret, share, do prevent
The bad from coming on the pages
Of our book — the Mother-Land
Let balance here last for ages

So bright and colourful is world
So clear and fresh is morning air
The Beauty also is a Word
So, please, do write everywhere!
